Uproar at Sing Sing.

In accordance with an act recently passed by the Legislature abolishing the female prison at Sing Sing, a preliminary instalment of fifty women was resterday transferred from that iu. stitution to the King's County Penitentiary. It was only after the propeller Leader had been made fast to the prison dock that the females already selected for transfer were notified to prepare to leave. Then arese a tumult of dis order and a Babel of vituperative sounds such as Bedlam itself might have envied. The dread appoundement that they were about being shipped to "Crow Hili" fell on the two score and ten crime steeped women with more exasperat.

ing effect than would, perhaps, the passing of

matron to allow them to remain, commenced to blaspheme and give vent to the most fearful imprecations, cursing madly and invoking the vengeance of the bottomless pit on the Legislature and the prison authorities. This up roarious state of things continued for almost an hour until the convicts in the male prison had all been gathered tegether at dinner in the mess room, when at a given signal the fifty women were marched, two abreast, down toward the main entrance on their way to the dock. Meantime it appears the matron had injudiciously granted the remainder of the female convicts the privilege of as-embling on the flat roof of a building adjoining the prison for the prupose of seeing off their friends-the depart ing jail birds. This they did by yelling, sing-ing, waving of handkerchiels, groaning for the Legislature, and cheering wildly for their less fortunate sisters to crime. When filing past the office of Warden Clarke the departine conviots again screamed at and hooted that official, showering upon him epithets which the habitues of Billingsgate might search their vocabulary in vain for, perorating with three groans for the Warden and the same number of cheers for the matron. Arrived at the dock a large negress, determined to play her best card in the game of deception, peradventure she might be taken back to the prison. Having chewed MAGNUS L. ROBINSON will be a candidate for Constable in the 4th ward as an a piece of ordinary soap until it assumed the consistency of froth exuling from her mouth, she fell down, apparently in a violent fir. The subterfuge failed, and she was carried bodily on board the steamer by several sturdy guards. Four subordinate efficers from the male prison and two of the under matrons went in charge of the women on board the steamer, which took her cargo to Hamilton avenue ferry. where the convicts were taken charge of by officers from the Kings County Penitestiary.

> afternoon, sent her a written request to tender her resignation at once. This the matron declined to do, whereupon the Warden promptly informed her by note that she was removed from her position. - N. Y. Herald, manner described, Warden Clarke, during the

WM. D. CORNELL, Secretary. Among the cases set for trial in the Crimina; Court yesterday was that of Dr. C. C. Howard, charged on three indictments with the larceny of a galvanic battery, valued at $27, from Dr. E. L. Jones; an overcoat, valued at $50, from Dr. T. C. Maddux; and a coat, valued at $31.50, from Dr. Alex. Hill. Howard is a rather tall. fine looking man, about thirty-seven years of age, although he appears older on account of his care-wern leatures. He was tried only in the galvanic battery case, the two other cases being postponed. He acted as counsel in his own behalf, cross examining the witnesses rigidly. The larceny was clearly established. After the evidence was all in Dr Howard made an elequent appeal to the jury in favor of his acquittal, alleging that he was a victim of dipsomania, or an irresistible or insane craving of alcoholic stimulants. He said he inherited the disease through five generations of his accestors, any one of whom would have scorned to stoop so lew as to commit a dishonest or dishonorable act. For that reason, when the mania was upon him he was totally unconscious of what he did, and this was his condition from the 17th to the 22 of April, during which pariod the larcenies occurred. He did not deny having taken the articles, but he did deny that he was responsible morally for what he had done, or amenable to the laws of the State. The jury could well and truly say that under the laws of Maryland, or any other civilized State or community, he was not guilty, as at the time of the alleged larceny he was not capable of having the wrongful intention which was a necessary ingredient in every offence. When he recovered consciousness he found himself in jail, charged with the degrading crime of larceny. In speak ing of his past life Dr. Howard alluded to his having been a surgeon in the Confederate army. He was arrested on one occasion by the Union troops as he was carrying dispatches from Gev. Early. The court martial by whom he was tried passed sentence of death upon him. The night before the day of his proposed execution he heard hammering, which his comradetold him was the noise of the work on his scaf told. His feelings then were as nothing com-

> under the circumstances. During the delivery of this impressive, and as it afterwards proved, effective argument or appeal the prisoner's eyes were several times suffused with tears. The jury first consuled together in their box, but being then noable to agree retired to their room. In about their y minutes they reurned with a verdice of to guilty, which was received by the prisoner with some show of
